SOCIAL WORK, MASTER OF (M.S.W.)/AGING STUDIES, CERTIFICATE IN (GRADUATE CERTIFICATE) [DUAL DEGREE AND CERTIFICATE]

Advanced study in social work and aging studies is available through a dual degree and certificate program co-sponsored by the School of Social Work and the Department of Gerontology in the College of Health Professions.

The program allows students to earn a Master of Social Work and a Certificate in Aging Studies with a minimum of 72 credits rather than the 75 credits necessary if the two degrees were pursued separately. This efficiency lowers the overall cost of tuition while also reducing time to earning both degrees.

Program goals

The objectives of this dual degree and certificate program are to:

- Prepare graduates to address the complex needs of a diverse aging population using holistic knowledge of the biopsychosocial aging process
- Provide graduates with an understanding of empirically and theoretically based components contributing to optimal aging using evidence-based, best-practice approaches
- Prepare graduates to work with older individuals, family members, communities and organizations that serve older adults
- Prepare graduates to advocate for policy change to promote social justice to improve the lives of older people

Among the many benefits offered by participation in the dual degree and certificate program is the following:

 Prepares graduates to become culturally competent geriatric social workers providing services to an ever-growing older population

The diplomas for this dual degree and certificate program may be awarded simultaneously. However, students must complete a separate graduation check out for each program.

See the individual program pages for student learning outcomes.

Other information

Advising

The student is assigned an adviser from each program to develop a plan of study. Advisers from each program will provide guidance on course requirements for their respective programs.

Admission requirements

See the individual program pages for admission deadlines and other requirements. Students must meet the admission requirements for each program. Admission into one program does not guarantee admission into the other. The Certificate in Aging Studies program is open to qualified students who have earned a baccalaureate degree from an accredited college or university or the equivalent and who have met all general admission requirements of the VCU Graduate School.

The admissions requirements for the M.S.W. (https:// www.socialwork.vcu.edu/programs/msw/admission.html) are posted on the School of Social Work website.

Application procedure

Applicants may apply at any time after acceptance into the M.S.W. program.

Students may contact VCU Graduate Admissions to have their transcripts and letters of recommendation from the M.S.W. application attached to their certificate application. A new personal statement is required.

Dual degree and certificate requirements

As standalone programs, the M.S.W. comprises 60 credits while the certificate requires 15 credits. The dual degree and certificate program allows students to share three credits, therefore decreasing total credits to completion from 75 to 63.

Based on the equivalent knowledge acquired by successfully completing one of the concentration courses in social work (SLWK 709, SLWK 793, SLWK 794 or SLWK 795), the elective is satisfied in the certificate curriculum.
