• Critically evaluate their own work and that of others for accuracy and fairness, clarity, appropriate style and grammatical correctness.
• Apply tools and technologies appropriate for the communication professions in which they work.
• Apply basic numerical and statistical concepts.
• Think critically, creatively and independently.
• Demonstrate an understanding of the history and role of professionals and institutions in shaping communications.
• Understand and apply the principles and laws appropriate to the communication professions in which they work, including copyright and trademark law.
• Demonstrate an understanding of the diversity of groups in a global society in relationship to communications.
• Demonstrate an understanding of professional ethical principles and work ethically.
• Understand concepts and apply theories in the use and presentation of images and information.

Special requirements
The overview section (http://bulletin.vcu.edu/undergraduate/college-humanities-sciences/school-media-culture) of the Robertson School of Media and Culture explains the requirements for students to be admitted to, and remain in, the foundation program or a specific concentration in the school.

Students must earn at least 72 credits in courses outside mass communications. In addition, students must earn a total of 45 credits in classes at the 300-level and above, including upper-level mass communications course work. To graduate from the mass communications program, students must have a cumulative and major GPA of 2.5 and must earn a minimum grade of C in their senior-level capstone courses (MASC 459 and MASC 481). The mass communications curriculum includes the foundation and specific concentrations.

Foundation course work for advertising students
MASC 101; MASC 201; MASC 204 with a minimum grade of C; and completion of UNIV 111, UNIV 112, ECON 203 and the College of Humanities and Sciences’ human, social and political behavior; math and statistics (must choose STAT 208 or STAT 210); science and technology; and diverse and global communities requirements. Completion of both ECON 210 and ECON 211 may substitute for ECON 203.

To enroll in MASC 203 or MASC 204, students must receive departmental permission.

To enroll in a mass communications course, majors must have earned a minimum grade of C in all courses prerequisite for that course.
