The chief administrative office for the School of Education is Oliver Hall, Room 2090. The dean is responsible for the overall operation of the school, while three associate deans (associate dean for academic affairs, associate dean for research and faculty development, and associate dean for student affairs and inclusive excellence) assist in the school’s administrative functions.

The school contains four academic departments: Counseling and Special Education, Educational Leadership, Foundations of Education, and Teaching and Learning. The school also supports a number of centers and institutes, including:

- Center for School Community Collaboration
- Center for Teacher Leadership
- Child Development Center
- Metropolitan Educational Research Consortium
- Partnership for People with Disabilities
- Rehabilitation Research and Training Center
- The Literacy Institute
