

PRE-PROFESSIONAL HEALTH MINORS

VCU offers eight pre-professional health minors for undergraduate students interested in pursuing future admission to professional health programs such as dentistry, medicine, occupational therapy, optometry, pharmacy, physical therapy, physician assistant or veterinary medicine. Students are supported both by a pre-professional health academic adviser in the College of Humanities and Sciences and by a team of pre-professional health career advisers (<https://careers.vcu.edu/majors-and-careers/career-pathways/health-care/>) in VCU Career Services. The advising and career services provided by these offices will prepare highly qualified, confident and knowledgeable pre-professional health students for admission to professional health programs.

Additionally a post-baccalaureate health sciences certificate (<https://bulletin.vcu.edu/undergraduate/college-humanities-sciences/kinesiology-health-sciences/health-sciences-certificate/>) is available to students who have already earned bachelor's degrees in non-science areas and plan to enter doctoral-level health science training programs.
